DETAILED ACTION

Status of the Claims

1. Claims 54-56, 60-63, 68-70, 73-74 and 77-81 are pending.

Applicants' amendment filed October 11, 2007 is acknowledged. Applicant's response has been fully considered. Claims 54-55 have been amended, claims 59, 64 and 65 have been cancelled. Therefore, claims 54-56, 60-63, 68-70, 73-74 and 77-81 are examined.

Withdrawn Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The previous rejection of claims 54-56, 59-65, 68-70, 73-74 and 78-81 under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, is withdrawn in view of applicants' amendment to the claim, applicants' cancellation of the claims, and applicants' response at page 6 in the amendment filed October 11, 2007.

3. The previous rejection of claims 59 and 64-65 under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, regarding the deposit, is withdrawn in view of applicants' cancellation of the claims, and applicants' response at page 6 in the amendment filed October 11, 2007.

New Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

4. Claims 54-56, 60-63, 68-70, 73-74 and 77-81 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 112, first paragraph, written description, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

The instant claims are drawn to yeast strains and expression cassettes containing genes defined only by the enzyme they encode, wherein the enzyme is defined only by name, which name is indicative of a function. The instant claims are also drawn to methods of producing ergosterol or an intermediate product thereof using genes that are defined only by function.

The Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit has recently held that a "written description of an invention involving a chemical genus, like a description of a chemical species, 'requires a precise definition, such as by structure, formula [or] chemical name,' of the claimed subject matter sufficient to distinguish it from other materials." University of California v. Eli Lilly and Co., 1997 U.S. App. LEXIS 18221, at *23, quoting Fiers v. Revel, 25 USPQ2d 1601, 1606 (Fed. Cir. 1993) (bracketed material in original). To fully describe a genus of genetic material, which is a chemical compound, applicants must (1) fully describe at least one species of the claimed genus sufficient to represent said genus whereby a skilled artisan, in view of the prior art, could predict the structure of other species encompassed by the claimed genus and (2) identify the common characteristics of the claimed molecules, e.g., structure, physical and/or chemical characteristics, functional characteristics when coupled with a known or disclosed correlation between function and structure, or a combination of these.

The instant specification describes the genes to be used in the claimed methods by virtue of function alone. No structures, other than specific species of genes, are described. No relation between the structure of the species and function is described. Thus, one of skill in the art would be required to predict new genes for use in the claimed methods based solely on their function, or the function of their encoded proteins. Such methods would not be predictably considering the minimal structural information provided in the specification. The lack of description on structure and function relationship for the genes encoding the enzymes, and lack of representative species as encompassed by the claims, applicants have failed to sufficiently describe the claimed invention, in such full, clear, concise terms that a skilled artisan would not recognize applicants were in possession of the claimed invention.
